THE LAND WHERE SCIENTIFICALLY VALUABLE MINERALS FORM.

Using mime, slide projections of the original illustrations from the book, a narrator, movie projections, special lighting and sound effects, and even smells, the 'The Land Where Scientifically Valuable Minerals Form.' attempts a more general appeal to the audience's senses than conventional theatrical practice, and indeed this method of presentation could well be termed "theatre of senses".

The action of the play does not take place in the kitchen of a large Victorian house.

The Phoebe Rees
Awards

Founded by Phoebe Rees and run by the Somerset Fellowship of Drama, the competition is open to amateur drama societies and groups in Somerset. Plays are adjudicated by members of the Fellowship's committee who also run an annual Original Playwriting Festival and the county's first round of the All England Theatre Festival, and organise drama training.

THE ROSE
BOWL
AWARDS
FOR AMATEUR
DRAMA & MUSIC

The Rose Bowl Awards

Founded by the families of Walter Hawkins and John Coe, this is now funded through the Quartet Community Foundation, with individual awards sponsored by the Bristol Evening Post.

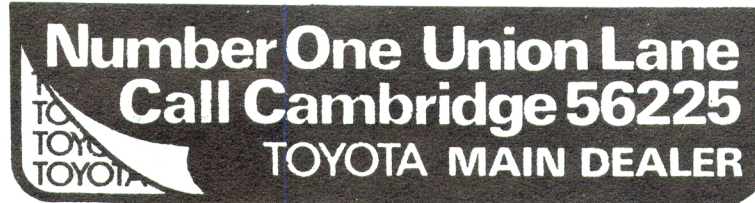

Amateur operatic and dramatic productions throughout former Avon, Gloucester and Somerset are assessed by GODA qualified adjudicators.
